4. Definition of faith (Hebrews 11:1).

II. Chronology.

BIBLE PERIOD: Patriarchy.

About 400 years pass between the events of this ending of the Book of Genesis and the beginning of the Book of Exodus. Exodus 1:8 tells us... Now there arose up a new king over Egypt, which knew not Joseph.

III. Summary.

After spending 17 years with his son Joseph in the land of Egypt, now comes the time of Jacob's death. Both Jacob and Joseph must have thoroughly enjoyed those 17 years. In chapter 49, the patriarch gathers his children to "tell you that which shall befall you in the last days" (49:1). Jacob has something to say about each of his twelve sons. Some of it is complimentary and some of it is not. Perhaps the most important pronouncement from Jacob was what he said to Judah—"The sceptre shall not depart from Judah, nor a lawgiver from between his feet, UNTIL SHILOH COME" (49:10). After his words to his sons he charged them to bury him at Machpelah. Jacob died—"was gathered to his people" (49:33).

In chapter 50 the grief of the family is detailed. Joseph has his father embalmed, which process takes 40 days. The Egyptians mourn over him for 70 days, then Joseph obtains permission from Pharaoh to go to Canaan to bury his father, so that he might comply with his father's request. That permission is granted. There was a large group of Pharaoh's servants and the elders in his house and in Egypt who traveled with Joseph and his family.

After the burial of their father, the brothers of Joseph began to fear that Joseph would now hate them because of what they had done to him when he was a teenager. When they asked for Joseph's forgiveness, Joseph wept and assured his brothers that he would take care of them. He said—"ye thought evil against me, but God meant it unto good" (50:20). Joseph could see the providential care of God in his own life and he spoke kindly to his brothers.

Joseph lived 110 years and during that period was able to see his grandchildren. Joseph took an oath of the children of Israel that they should carry up his bones from Egypt when God visited them. Joseph dies and is put in a coffin in Egypt.

VI. Lessons & Applications.

1. ...until Shiloh come... (Gen 49:10). Here is a reference to the coming Messiah through Whom all nations would be blessed. It is out of this tribe, the descendants of Judah, that the promise to Abraham would be fulfilled. That Jesus is later described as the “Lion of the Tribe of Judah,” (Rev 5:5) is quite interesting. Jesus is not only spoken of as the “Lion of the Tribe of Judah,” but also as the “Lamb that taketh away the sin of the world” (John 1:29). These two figures applied to the same person surely help us to see the greatness and diversity of our Lord. As far as personal attacks, Jesus showed Himself to be gentle as a lamb; as far as attacks upon the doctrine or upon His apostles, he was more like a LION.
2. ...I am to be gathered unto my people... (Gen 49:29). Surely this statement means more than just bones beside bones. Does not this expression seem to indicate a faith that there would be a reunion with his father and grandfather? It is true that God is dealing with the patriarchs in this age in a different way than with us, having provided us with the completed written revelation, but some things were revealed to these great men of God and there seems to be this hope of reunion with one another.
